Effects water has on plants

Bailey Hartje 10th grade

While it is okay to give most plants tap water, some are too sensitive and will be damaged by the chemicals, such as e.g., lead, arsenic, nitrates, and nitrites in the water Distilled water is basically dead water, which means everything in it has been removed through boiling. In rainwater, trace amounts of contaminants can still be found, especially if the water came from a source like farm runoff. It should still be the best type of water to give your plants because rainwater contains nitrate.

Dogs!

Kaydee Volker Grade 10

There are so many different types of dogs! Some of the most popular dogs are German Shepard, poodle, bulldog, golden retriever, labs, beagle and many more! A few facts about dogs are, a dog's sense of smell is 40 times better than ours, dogs have 18 muscles to move their ears, and puppies are born blind and deaf, they develop hearing and sight over time. There are so many benefits of having a dog, they make you feel happier, reduce stress and loneliness, help with health problems, and there are many more benefits that dogs might help you with!

Snowmobiling

Ayden Olson 9th

Snowmobiling is a winter sport. Snowmobiling has been around for many years. It was invented in 1922. People like to snowmobile, but you can only do it in the winter and only if you have enough snow. People like to go to the mountains, while others prefer trails. In the mountains you must do a lot of work to get up the mountains and there is a lot of snow so you may get stuck easier. Trail riding is more laid back and just cruising. There are popular places near Yellowstone to go to for mountains and trail riding.
